Several years ago the author became interested in his ancestors. As a result of this interest, a large amount of data on the Cass family and connecting lines have been accumulated. This record gives a complete Cass lineage of Ada Ball Cass, the daughter of the author. Persons interested in information on connecting lines which has been compiled by the author may find it in volumes VII and VIII of "The Compendium of American Genealogy" and in manuscript form in these libraries: The Grosvenor Library, Buffalo, N. Y. and The New England Historic Genealogical Society Library in Boston, Massachusetts.

ADA BALL CASS DESCENDANT OF JOHN

John Cass of whom Ada Ball Cass is a descendant was born in England about 1620 and came to Hampton, N. H. in 1644. He was among the first settlers of that town. He appeared in Boston in 1648 and died there April 7, 1675. Relatively little is known of this man, except that he was a Quaker and that he was well received in his community.

The Ada Ball branch of the Cass family migrated to Mendon, Mass., from there to Smithfield, R. I., and about 1762 returned to New Hampshire with a group of Quakers who settled the Town of Richmond. About 1830, Alvin Cass left New Hampshire to seek his fortune in New York State. He settled on poor land in the Town of Palermo, Oswego County and did not realize his ambition. Examination of the property he purchased indicates that he was a victim of land speculators.

FOURTH GENERATION

22. DANIEL CASS, son of John(11), was born at Hampton, N. H., November 29, 1724. He married Mary Cook at Mendon, Mass., April 7, 1744. They resided at Smithfield, R. I. where eight of their ten children were born. About 1762 Daniel and his brother, John, along with a group of Quakers, left Smithfield and settled in southern New Hampshire at Richmond. They were among the first to open up the wilderness in that locality. An interesting point in connection with this settlement was the name of the first settler's child to be born there. He was a son of the Martin family who named him "Wilderness". His gravestone still stands in the burying ground by the old Quaker meeting house at Richmond.

Daniel is recorded as having been a large land holder, a wealthy man, and a radical politician. He was the first merchant in the town, keeping a store in his home. He was one of the first voters in the town and was elected Selectman at the first town meeting in 1765, and was also the first Town Clerk. He was sent as a representative to the meeting to decide the question of dividing New Hampshire to form Vermont and was expelled from this meeting, much to the displeasure of his fellow townsmen who removed him from the town office he was holding. Being a Quaker, he objected to taking up arms at the time of The American Revolution. However, he, with several others at Richmond, signed The Association Test of The New Hampshire Colony, August 30, 1776. (See national number 63752, National Society Sons of The American Revolution.)

SEVENTH GENERATION

44. ALVIN CASS, son of Martin(36), was born at Richmond on June 5, 1803. On September 21, 1828 he married Susannah, daughter of Stephen and Charlotte (Ballou) Harris who was born at Richmond on June 17, 1799 and died in the Town of Palermo, Oswego Co., N. Y. on May 29, 1855. Her gravestone still stands in Wellwood Cemetery in the Town of Mexico, Oswego, N. Y.

Soon after their marriage, Alvin and Susannah left Richmond to seek their fortune in New York State. They settled on land which apparently had been overly advertised, because it was poorly situated and exceedingly rocky. It is apparent that the purchase was made through a land speculator without examination. Nevertheless, in spite of the trials of the Oswego County wilderness in the early part of the nineteenth century, the Cass family remained there. Alvin was present at the meeting in 1832 when the Town of Palermo was formed and he was elected constable and pathmaster.

After Susannah's death, Alvin went with a brother, Willard, who lived in Tioga County, Pennsylvania. In 1866 he went to River Falls, Wisconsin to reside with his daughter, Augusta, who had married William Gilson
